Celebration of Generosity
2026

First Woodstock Church Family,

God has done so much through our church this year! When we faithfully put what He has given us back into His hands, He uses it in remarkable ways.

In this year's Celebration of Generosity, you'll meet people being discipled, cared for, equipped, and sent. Behind every story is the faithfulness of God and the generosity of His people.

Your tithe strengthens the foundation of our church's everyday ministry, helping us gather for worship, disciple believers, care for families, reach our community, and provide the resources that make ministry possible.

This year, we're also introducing Second Mile, a new way for us to advance our mission together. Through Second Mile, we'll invest in our Community, strengthen churches across our Nation, support mission partners around the World, and equip Future Leaders.

Two ways to give. One mission: helping people find and follow Jesus from Woodstock and Roswell Street to the world.

As you read these stories, we hope you see a glimpse of the many ways lives are being changed through the ministry of our church. Each one is a reminder of the impact of your faithful generosity.

Thank you for giving, serving, praying, and joining us in the mission God has entrusted to First Woodstock. We are grateful for your faithfulness and excited for what lies ahead.

SOUNDS OF THE SEASON

The Courage to Share

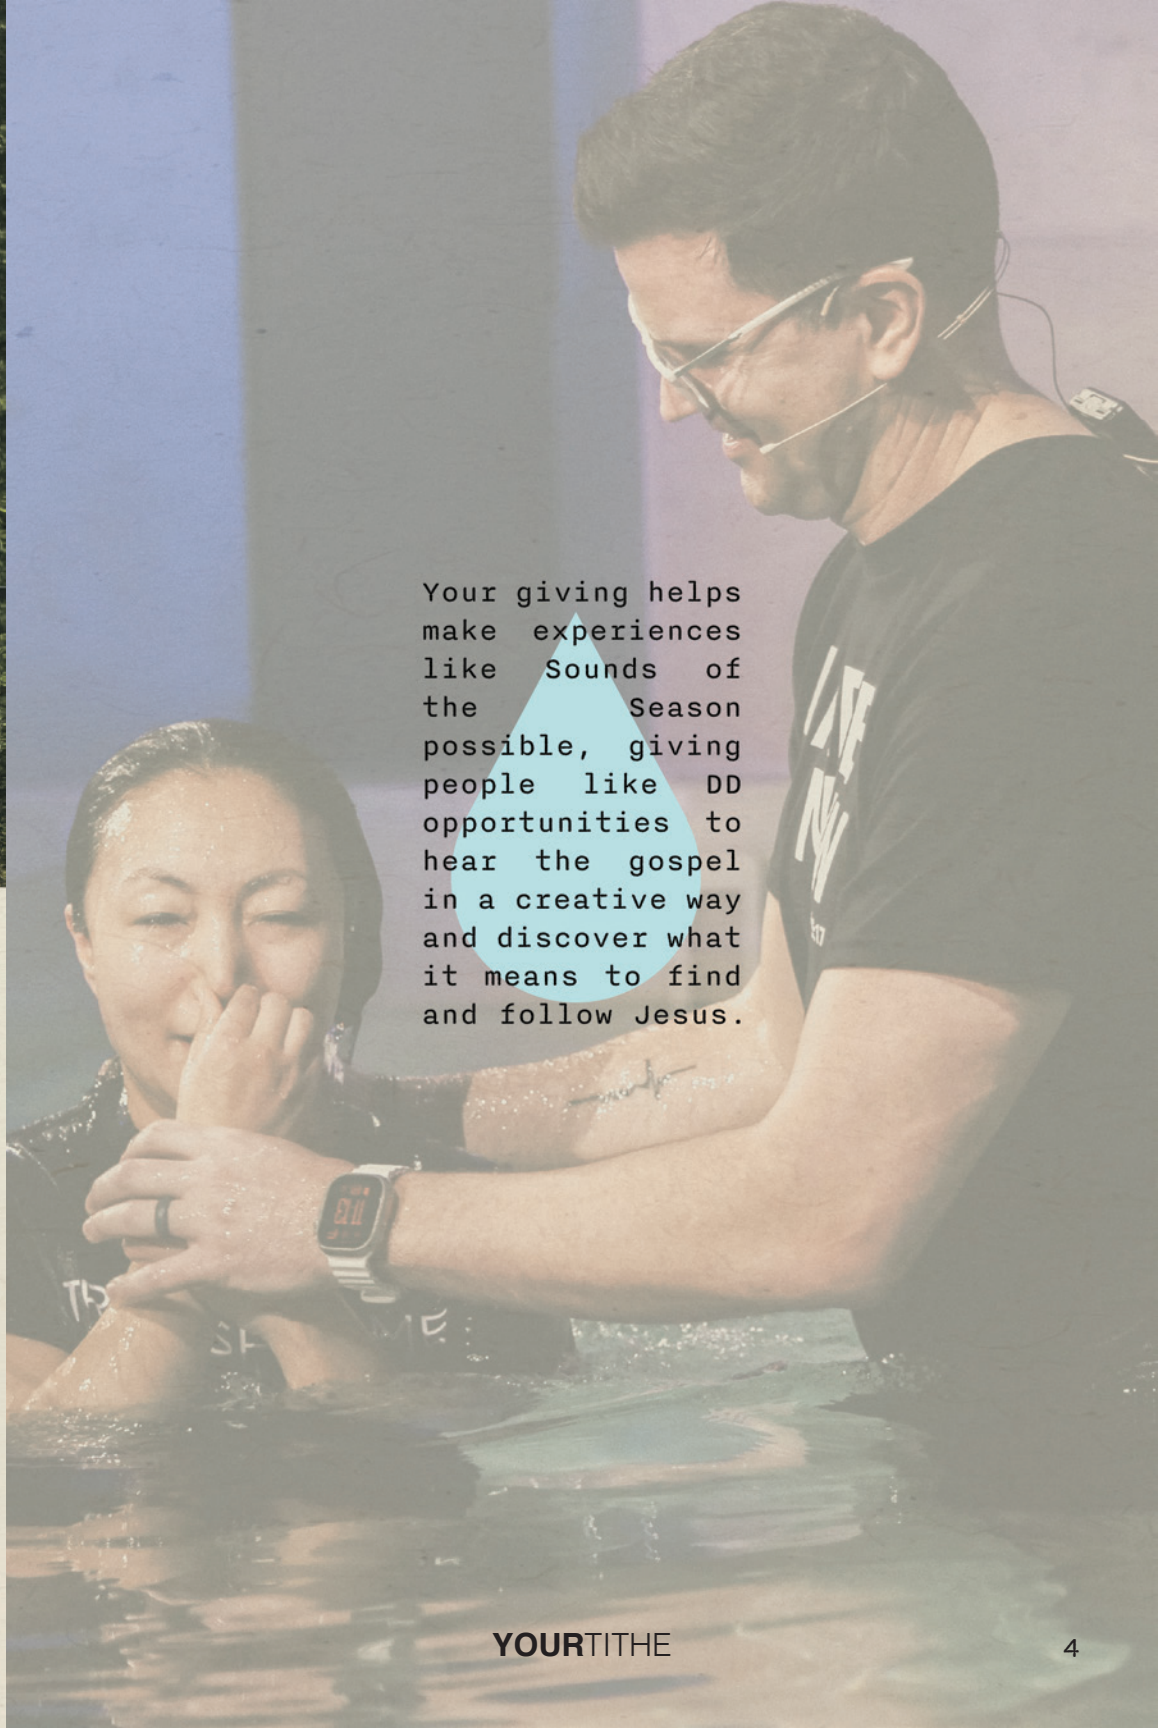

When Robert Locke sat down to interview DD Garzon, he was preparing to introduce her as the new president of a national real estate management organization. But their conversation turned to something far more important.

As they talked, Robert boldly shared the gospel, sketching a picture of the gulf between God and man and the cross as the only bridge between them. DD had seen the picture before, but something was different this time when she heard Robert explain who Jesus was. Then he invited DD to Sounds of the Season.

Surrounded by the celebration of Christmas, presented so exceptionally by our worship and production teams, DD was moved to tears and sensed a desire to be part of First Woodstock.

A few weeks later, DD placed her faith in Jesus Christ.

Today, she has a growing hunger for God's Word, and her new faith is reshaping every part of her life, from her marriage to the way she makes business decisions.

Your giving helps make experiences like Sounds of the Season possible, giving people like DD opportunities to hear the gospel in a creative way and discover what it means to find and follow Jesus.

THRIVE

A Place for the Whole Family

For years, Amy and Steve searched for a church that could truly care for their entire family. Then their son Walt attended Night to Shine in 2023. They had heard about First Woodstock's Thrive special needs ministry, but the distance from home had always seemed too far. After Night to Shine, that didn't matter anymore.

"For us, one of the greatest gifts has simply been having a place where we belong," Amy said. "At Thrive, we have never been made to feel like Walt is a burden or that he doesn't belong."

Through your tithe, you help provide the people and resources that make it possible for Thrive to care for Walt while Amy and Steve worship together each week.

"We can sit in the service, listen to the message, and truly soak it in because we know Walt is safe, happy, and loved. That time fills our cup in ways I don't think people always realize."

Amy is especially grateful for Thrive Director Valeria Lobo, whom the family affectionately calls the "Walt whisperer."

"She just seems to understand him. She has a way of putting my mind at ease and reminding me that Walt is loved, understood, and in good hands. Thrive has given Walt a place to belong, and in doing so, our entire family now has one too!"

LITTLES

Known By Name

When Meagan Franklin first learned about Littles, her son Noah had not even been born. She reached out to Littles Director Tish Wright, visited the ministry, and immediately saw something special.

Noah began attending at just eight weeks old, as Meagan was navigating a painful divorce and raising a newborn on her own. More than two years later, the demands of being a single mom with sole custody are still very real. Through it all, Meagan has felt the support of First Woodstock as people have walked alongside her, and Littles has become a place where Noah is welcomed by name and surrounded by genuine care.

"Being able to entrust Noah to such Christlike care and devotion during such a painful season makes all the difference," Meagan said.

Today, Noah runs into Littles excited to see "Aunt Tish" and his buddies.

Your tithe helps make it possible for Meagan to worship, serve, and grow while Noah learns about Jesus in a safe, loving place each week.

"Knowing that my child is seen and loved by so many is a priceless blessing. Littles does not just provide childcare. They extend the grace, love, and compassion of Christ."

The Nations Have Come to Us

Each Wednesday night, more than 100 people come to First Woodstock to learn English in six levels of ESL classes. Our citizenship classes have also helped nearly 500 people become U.S. citizens over the past decade.

Carolyn Weathersbee has served in ESL at First Woodstock for almost 30 years. As an English teacher with a heart for internationals, she saw an opportunity to meet practical needs and share the hope of Jesus.

One of Carolyn's students came from Japan at age 76, with little English and no experience reading the Bible. He faithfully attended Wednesday and Sunday classes for years. His English improved, his love for Scripture grew, and he eventually placed his faith in Jesus. He later returned to Japan and shared the gospel there.

Your tithe helps equip volunteers and provide classes that meet practical needs, build relationships, and create opportunities to share Jesus with people from around the world.

"The nations have come to us," Carolyn said. "What a great opportunity. There is no greater joy than to be the hands and feet of Jesus and serve Him."

WOODSTOCK KIDS

Seeds Planted, Lives Changed

Every week, more than 500 elementary kids gather at First Woodstock on Sundays, with another 280 on Wednesday nights. Hundreds more participate in Kids Camp and VBS each year.

For nearly five years, Carson and Landon Scott were two of those kids, until life as an Air Force family recently called them to a new city.

During that time, people at First Woodstock prayed for them, taught them God's Word, and modeled what it means to follow Jesus. This summer, those seeds bore fruit. At Kids Camp, Carson placed his faith in Jesus, and Landon also trusted Christ this summer.

Their mom, Shelby, reflected, "Our friendships, and subsequently the boys' friendships, were profound in preparing their hearts to accept Christ."

Your tithe makes this kind of year-round discipleship possible.

WOODSTOCK STUDENTS

Putting Faith Into Practice

"How can I serve the church and the body of believers best?"

Your tithe helps provide year-round ministry for more than 450 middle and high school students who gather at First Woodstock to worship, build relationships, and grow in their faith. During his years in Woodstock Students, Blake Malemezian embraced opportunities to serve on the worship team, preach to his peers, and participate in five international mission trips.

Blake shared that "God absolutely used those experiences to grow my faith and my love for serving Him."

He graduated this spring and is now studying nursing at the University of Tennessee. Blake says his years at First Woodstock changed how he understands what it means to follow Jesus.

"Being a student at Woodstock changed my perspective from 'What can I get out of church?' to 'How can I serve the church and the body of believers best?'"

ADULT GROUPS

A Place to Be Known

For Courtney and Laura Evans, leading a Sunday Group is about creating an environment where people can know one another, spend time in God's Word, pray honestly, and enjoy life together.

Their group has become much more than a Sunday morning class. When someone needs help, people respond with meals, prayer, encouragement, and practical support. They celebrate together, walk through difficult seasons together, and look for opportunities to serve others beyond the walls of the church.

Courtney said, "We get to be the hands and feet of Jesus to one another and then carry that same love into the community around us."

Through your tithe, First Woodstock provides the training, resources, and support that equip leaders like Courtney and Laura to offer groups for adults in every season of life.

For those who attend worship but haven't yet found a group, Courtney offered this encouragement: "You can sit in a large room with hundreds or thousands of people and worship together, which is wonderful, but it's hard to truly know people and be known there. A small group gives you a place where people pray for you, celebrate with you, and walk through hard things with you."

YOURTITHE

BEYOND SUNDAY MORNING

For more than 12 years, Jim Law has led the Digging Deeper Sunday Group. With the help of his co-teacher, Len Nelms, the group reviews the Sunday sermon and considers how to put what they've learned into practice.

That practical approach extends beyond Sunday mornings. Care Groups help members stay connected and respond to needs, from meals and utility bills to car repairs and yard work. The group also reaches beyond its own members to meet needs in the community.

Their reach extends around the world, with each Care Group regularly encouraging several missionaries.

"I believe Scripture is clear that God loves the world," Jim shared. "If we are going to be complete in our service to Him, we must be involved in the world."

What a great reminder that generosity takes many forms, from caring for those around us to investing in people and ministries around the world.

705 WOODSTOCK YOUNG ADULTS

This year marks a new season for First Woodstock's young adult ministry. Formerly known as "The Well," the ministry became "705" under the leadership of Tim Howard, who returned to First Woodstock after beginning his ministry journey here.

More than 200 young adults now gather on Tuesday nights, and 30 serve on the 705 leadership team through small groups, weekly gatherings, and other opportunities.

"They are the heartbeat of this ministry," Tim said. "They will do whatever it takes to make Jesus known."

This summer, 12 young adults took a mission trip, serving alongside a First Woodstock church-planting partner in Montana. Through prayer walking, community projects, and sharing the gospel at a local fair, the trip helped lay the groundwork for what Tim calls "setting a serving culture."

From gathering each week to serving on mission, 705 is helping young adults grow as disciples prepared to serve, lead, and invest in others. It's another example of how your tithe strengthens the foundation for ministry today and prepares people to carry the mission forward.

A Dream Years in the Making

For years, Serenade Heights founder Nancy Tucker dreamed of having a place where single moms and their children could find stable housing, supportive community, and the space to build a different future.

Several years ago, Nancy and her team created a wish list for what that property might include. Earlier this year, she walked the property First Woodstock had purchased to build the Dream Again Village and realized that nearly everything they had envisioned was already there.

"Every one of those wishes was in some way answered, and we were blown away. God is such a personal, generous, amazing provider!"

Through Second Mile, First Woodstock will prepare the recently purchased property in Hickory Flat to build townhome-style housing for moms participating in Serenade Heights' two-year program. Living in one location will help these moms build relationships and make it easier for them to connect with mentors and Serenade Heights staff who walk alongside them.

Someone to Walk Beside Her

Emily came to Serenade Heights after aging out of foster care. She was raising her young daughter, Emery, and working to build a more stable future for both of them.

Since then, Emily has completed a medical certificate program, found work in a medical office, grown in her faith, and been baptized. Along the way, she has been surrounded by a case manager, a life coach, and mentors, including First Woodstock members Claudia and Sheri.

Recently, when Emily's car broke down on the interstate on her way to work, Claudia and Sheri stepped in. They helped get Emery to daycare, provided transportation, and walked alongside Emily as she found another vehicle.

Second Mile is about more than what we give. It's an invitation to invest our time, gifts, and lives in the people and ministries God has placed before us. For Claudia and Sheri, that has meant simply being there when Emily needed them.

"A single mom's car repair can totally wreck her life and future," Nancy said. "Their kindness and generosity truly helped make a hard situation much easier and less traumatic."

PLACE TO TURN

Every week, First Woodstock helps people facing difficult circumstances, both within our church family and throughout our community.

Over the past year, nearly 2,000 boxes of food have been distributed through our Food Pantry, along with more than $13,000 in clothing assistance. Our Care Ministry also provides financial assistance to individuals and families facing unexpected needs and challenging seasons.

That care extends beyond our campus. Through Church on the Street, volunteers serve and build relationships with people experiencing homelessness. And through our partnership with Bethesda Community Clinic, more than 100 people each month receive free medical care from healthcare professionals who volunteer their time.

When people in our community need help, we want them to know they can turn to First Woodstock. Through Second Mile, we can expand that care by meeting practical needs, strengthening local partnerships, and serving people in the name of Jesus.

WE WANT THEM TO KNOW THEY CAN

THREE PLAYERS WANTED MORE

Six years ago, Mark Weems had a chance to share a short devotion with the football team at Dean Rusk Middle School. The next day, the coach called.

"When I saw his number, I thought I must have said something offensive," Mark said.

Instead, the coach told him three players wanted Mark to lead a Bible study for them and their friends. Almost in disbelief, Mark asked, "Are you telling me you've got three players who want to get coached up on the gospel?"

Fourteen students met with Mark that first Friday at the Chick-fil-A in Hickory Flat. The next week, 30 showed up.

Six years later, Mark still leads the Bible study in the same place. Now, more than 150 students gather each Friday to open their FCA Athlete Bibles, answer study questions, and pray together. Over those six years, 30 students have accepted Christ as their Savior.

Through Second Mile and our partnership with FCA, you are helping put God's Word into the hands of students right here in our community.

WEFOSTER

Love in a Time of Need

Sean and Brandy Perone opened their home to foster children out of a desire to be obedient to what they believed God was asking them to do.

"We have always strongly believed that every child deserves to feel safe, loved, valued, cared for, and, most importantly, to know God," Brandy shared.

Foster families experience the ups and downs of visits with biological families, legal decisions beyond their control, and the challenge of loving a child deeply while not knowing how long that child will remain in their home.

Through meals, clothing, toys, prayer, and encouragement, WeFoster has helped the Perones realize they are not walking through those challenges alone.

"Fostering can sometimes be isolating, especially during the hardest moments, but knowing we have a strong support system and that people are lifting us up in prayer reminds us that we are not walking alone."

Through Second Mile, you help WeFoster provide practical support and encouragement to foster families like the Perones as they open their homes and hearts to children in need.

SHOWING UP

Throughout the year, First Woodstock pastors, staff, and church members build relationships in local schools through clubs, athletic teams, and school events. They serve as chaplains and coaches, speak to students, and encourage teachers. Director of Community Outreach Shea Ferguson, recently named River Ridge High School's Volunteer of the Year, helps lead those efforts.

"Having a consistent presence in our local schools is important because relationships build trust for Gospel conversations and discipleship," Shea said.

Over the past year, more than 20 students have placed their faith in Christ through pastors and volunteers speaking on school campuses. Others have connected with First Woodstock through their athletic teams and begun attending Wednesday night student ministry.

"Our local schools are a mission field God has opened to us," Shea said. "Our desire is to faithfully show up, serve our schools, and build relationships that create opportunities for people to find and follow Jesus."

Partnering with the North American Mission Board (NAMB) to plant churches nationwide

Sent to Plant

Trenton Dörner grew up at First Woodstock, where he placed his faith in Jesus and sensed God's call to ministry. In 2017, he and his wife, Griffin, moved to Las Vegas to serve at Hope Church, which First Woodstock helped plant. Trenton believed God might one day call him to plant a church.

After nearly a decade at Hope, Trenton and his family moved to New York City to plant Renewal Church on Manhattan's Upper West Side. A longtime love for the city has grown into a deep burden to reach people with the gospel.

Trenton said, "NYC has a rich history of revival and spiritual awakening, and we believe God wants to do it again."

A core team is already taking shape, relationships are forming, and strangers are becoming friends.

"We believe God is on a renewal mission, and He has invited us to join in. That's why we are planting Renewal Church!"

GROWING THROUGH PARTNERSHIP

For six years, First Woodstock has partnered with CityWalk Church in Yuba City, California, a diverse region with significant secular, Mormon, and Indian Sikh communities.

Each summer, a First Woodstock team serves alongside CityWalk at its largest community outreach, a Sports Camp for children ages 6–12. This year, 399 children participated across three communities, and 184 placed their faith in Jesus.

The camps have also helped CityWalk expand its reach. The church has grown from its original Yuba City location to a second in Edgewater, with another planned for Willows in 2027. What began in one community is now reaching three, as CityWalk shares the gospel, builds relationships, and multiplies in new communities.

The Gospel Taking Root

Game and Katie Pongpa serve among the ethnic Northern Thai people in Sanpatong, Thailand, where only 0.03% are evangelical Christians. In 2019, they began their first church with a small group meeting in a parking lot. This year, it became the first legally registered Thai Baptist church in the district.

After severe flooding struck a nearby village, Game, Katie, and local believers provided practical help, opening doors for the gospel. Since then, six people have professed faith in Jesus, and local believers now return weekly to disciple them and reach others.

Katie said, "We are praying this village will become our second indigenous Northern Thai church plant, a church born out of the first church, led increasingly by ethnic Northern Thai believers, and reaching its own community."

First Woodstock is grateful to partner with Game and Katie in this work, including sending a team from Mission Church Roswell Street this fall to serve alongside them at their annual discipleship camp.

SECONDMILE

Hope in Hard Places

"Mark" and "Ashley" serve in one of the world's most challenging regions, advancing church planting and disciple-making across the Middle East, North Africa, and Western Europe. They share the gospel where they live while training indigenous believers and missionaries to make disciples, plant churches, and develop leaders.

One story from that work involves a man we'll call "Reza." Raised in a devout Muslim family, Reza was trained from childhood to become an imam. As a young man, however, his zeal turned to anger and violence, and he eventually joined a militant group.

Then, in a vivid dream, Reza became convinced that a dark spiritual force was driving the hatred and violence he saw around him. In that same dream, he encountered Jesus.

Shaken by the experience, Reza began reading the Bible and eventually placed his faith in Christ. God later connected him with one of Mark and Ashley's teammates, who began discipling and equipping him to lead others.

Today, the same intensity Reza once directed toward violence is devoted to advancing the gospel. He has planted churches that have gone on to plant other churches, multiplying the hope of Jesus in a place where following Him can come at tremendous cost.

For Mark and Ashley, First Woodstock is part of that work.

"We know people at the church are praying for us, and that makes a huge difference. Prayer is our most powerful weapon, and it's part of the work itself. We're also so grateful for the way First Baptist supports this work financially, across several countries. It's helping us go the distance."

FUTURE LEADERS

We will pour into future leaders through discipleship, training, and hands-on experience as they prepare to follow God's call.

PRIORITIES

- Residency & Internship Program

An Investment That Multiplies

When Micah Smith began an internship at First Woodstock during his senior year of college, he was planning to pursue a career in physical therapy. What began as six months of serving with the young adult ministry became a two-year residency and a calling to ministry.

"First Woodstock not only took a chance on me but also gave me an opportunity to pursue ministry and discover who God was preparing me to be."

Developing future leaders like Micah is one of the priorities of Second Mile. The investment First Woodstock made in him eventually led to college ministry with The Salt Company in Nebraska. Now, he is preparing to return to Georgia to lead a college ministry connected to a church plant in Athens.

"As I build out my staff team for Athens, I plan to multiply the impact that First Woodstock had on me. I can't wait to see how God uses First Woodstock to change generations to come."

PREPARING FOR THE CALL

"We must invest in the next generation and give them opportunities to learn alongside experienced ministry leaders."

For some, the call to ministry begins with a question: "Is God really calling me to full-time ministry?" For others, the direction is clear, but they need experience to prepare for what comes next.

First Woodstock's internship and residency program creates a place for both. Interns spend a year exploring where God may be calling them to serve, while residents develop the skills needed to pursue their specific ministry calling.

Throughout the year, they learn alongside experienced ministry leaders, receive mentoring and discipleship, and immediately put what they are learning into practice.

"Practical training is more valuable than classroom instruction, but both are essential to developing well-rounded leaders," Associate Pastor Wes Cantrell said. "We must invest in the next generation and give them opportunities to learn alongside experienced ministry leaders."

When you give to Second Mile, you are investing in future leaders as they discern God's call, develop their gifts, and prepare to serve the church for years to come.

A HARVEST FOR GENERATIONS

John Welborn first heard about First Woodstock's Internship Program as a teenager. He spent a year at our church in 2005, then returned to serve on staff and teach young adults. Those years reshaped his view of the local church and prepared him for a broader calling.

"First Woodstock was my first experience being part of a church that was fully committed to the mission of God both locally and globally."

Today, John pastors Salem Church NYC and serves with the North American Mission Board as Director of Send New York, supporting church planters across the city. During his 11 years in New York, he has helped plant four churches, with a fifth preparing to launch in 2027.

Looking back, John sees a direct connection between First Woodstock's investment in him and the leaders he is investing in today.

"I am a product of that generosity. Today, I have the privilege of investing in pastors, church planters, and churches who will invest in others long after us."

John's story reminds us that we may never fully see how God will use what we faithfully place in His hands today. Through Second Mile, we can multiply our impact, reaching far beyond Woodstock and Roswell Street and carrying the gospel forward across generations.
